The subject of acquiescence in unconsti-tutional apportionment statutes as affecting the right of an elector to have the validity of the act determined was considered by the Supreme Court of New Jersey in State vs. Wrightson, supra, where it was claimed that a particular method of apportionment had been acquiesced in ever since the adoption of the Constitution by all parts of the State government and by the people and that therefore it was no longer subject to question. But it was held by the court that this doctrine had no application whatever in a case where it appeared that the mandates of the Constitution had not been obeyed. The court said: "The Constitution contains the permanent will of the people It is paramount to the power of the Legisature and can be revoked or altered only by the power which created it. Popular government can be maintained only by uplding the Constitution at all times and on all occasions, as it was when it came from the hands of the people, by whose flat it was established as the fundamental articles of government, to abide until altered by the authority which created it. To adopt the language of Chief Justice Bronson, in Oakley vs. Aspinwall, 3 N. Y., 558: "There is always some plausible reason for the latitudinarian constructions which are resorted to for the purpose of acquiring power-some evil to be avoided, or some good to be attained by pushing the powers of the government beyond their legitimate boundary. I is by yielding to such influences that Consti tutions are gradually undermined and finally overthrown. * * . One step taken by the Legislature of the judiciary in enlarging the powers of the government opens th oor for another, which will be sure to folrespect for the fundamental law is lost, and ese in authority please to call them." Within the domain of construction there i the powers of the government are just what room for argument and discussion-nay, even for a diversity of opinion; but when he meaning of the Constitution, interpreted by its letter and in its spirit, is ascertained extraneous considerations are of no avail. In the process of construction long usage and practical interpretation are entitled to great weight if the language be obscure or loubtful; but such extraneous considerations cannot be allowed to "abrogate the text" or "fritter away its obvious sense." EVILS OF THE SYSTEM.

regulating this subject, fortified by the policy spectively, and that the division of counties into assembly districts and the distribution of the members among these districts for the urpose of electing such members is in conwith the constitutional mandate. No one can examine the legislation on this subject from 1871 to the present time and contemplate the results without realizing the system. Relief from these wrongs through the ballot box cannot be assured, the majority in the Legislature being elected under this system by a minority of the legal voters of the State. Precedent has been followed by retaliation, to be repeated from time to time as supremacy in the Legislature has passed from one political party to the other. For this condition of affairs the only remedy is by a return to constitutional It is said in Const. Lim. 87 note, criticising the action of certain courts in declaring a statute to be constitutional which was would have been interesting and useful if either of these learned courts had exumerated the evils that must be laced in the opposite scale when the ques tion is whether a constitutional rule shall be disregarded; not the least of which is the encouragement of a disposition on the part of legislative bodies to set aside constitutional restrictions in the belief that if unconstitutional law can once be put in force and large interest enlisted under it, ne courts will not venture to declare it void, but will submit to the usurpation no matter how gross and daring. We agree with the Supreme Court of Indiana that in construing constitutions courts have nothing to do with the argument of ab inconvenienti and should not bend the Constitution to suit the law of the hour' (Greencastle Township vs Black, 5 Ind., 557, 565); and with Bronson, C. J., in what he says in Oakley vs. Aspinwall, 3 N. Y. 547, 568. It is now more than five months until the next general election, and ample time re-mains for the proper authorities to take such steps as may be deemed necessary to protect the rights of the people and see hat the laws are faithfully executed." If, however, the election were so near at hand that such steps could not reasonably be taken the court might perhaps properly withhold its decision until after the election was held, but in no event would the court be justified in adjudging that an unconstitutional apportionment act was valid or in refusing to pass upon the question of its validity; to do so is to disregard the prons of the Constitution which every officer is sworn to suppor It is proper to say that the quotation made in the prevailing opinion from the separate opinion of Elliott, J., ib. Parker vs. State, supra, is from that part of the opinion in which he expresses his dissent from the action of the majority in declaring the apporhat the court should not pass upon the

The report of the retiring treasurer, W. W. Mathews, of Indianapolis, showed that the net profits of the last year, applied to the reduction of debt, was $325, with a total receipt of $1,575. The report of R. Roberts, the new superintendent, showed that the association was never in better condition at the opening of

Dr. J. W. Dashiel, the presiding officer of the association, was not able to announce a complete programme for the season, but stated that he had secured a number of noted ecturers and speakers, and was in correondence with others. Among the attracions already secured are the reunions of the Third Cavalry and the Seventieth Indiana olunteers, with Colonel Merrill and General Harrison; all the presiding elders of the conerence; ex-Lieutenant Governor Cumback; Dr. Talbert and Dr. Coultas; a Delsartean artist, whose name was not given; the State W. C. T. U., for two days; Woman's Home Missionary Society, one day; Chautauqua Circles, two days; Epworth League, three Professor Viangler and wife, of Moore's Hill, will have charge of the music. Professor Charles W. Hodell, of Pittsburg. will deliver two or more lectures on popular subjects. The regular kindergarten exercises will be continued each day, although the instructor has not been selected. The annual conference and the Itinerant school cannot be secured for this year, although it is probable that they will meet here in 1897.

It was decided to hold a full four weeks' session, beginning July 16 and closing Aug. 12. Ten families are already in camp on the grounds, and will remain the entire season, Children can have their coffee nowadays and add to their health. Postum is a facsimile of fine Mocha coffee, but it is made wholly of pure grains.

"One of the most prominent merchants here says that Cuba has received its death blow, but in my opinion an immediate peace would still leave a chance for the return of prosperity."

Commenting editorially, the Times says: "A more meiancholy picture would be impossible to imagine than our Havana correspondent draws, but it is doubtful whether any demonstration of the desperate nature acquiesce in an arrangement so galling to their national pride as that which our corguaranteed by the United States. Taking the dismal picture as it is presented, we see but one hope for the maintenance of the Spanish connection, namely, a speedy and thorough reconquest, followed by a redress of grievances, the abolition of cor-ruption, and an honest government of Cuba for the Cubans, instead of for the official classes in Spain.

WEYLER'S LATEST ORDER. All Corn in Store Must Be Turned Over to the Spaniards.

HAVANA, May 15 .- Captain General Weyler has issued a proclamation giving the Pinar del Rio, Havana and Matanzas. The tachments of Spanish troops. If the country people are unable to transport the corn themselves they will be furnished with the necessary vehicles, and the military authoritles at the collecting centers have beeen authorized to purchase the corn at market price or receive it on deposit. At the expiration of the twenty days all corn not deposited or so purchased by the military authorities will be considered as contraband of war and the owners of it will be punished as criminals

OBITUARY.

Rear Admiral Thomas Holdup Stevens,

a Hero of the Civil War. WASHINGTON, May 15.—Rear Admiral Thomas H. Stevens, U. S. N., retired, died unexpectedly at the residence of his son-inlaw, Robert Bradley, in Rockville, Md., this morning. He was a son of Capt. Thomas Holdup Stevens, one of the heroes of the battle of Lake Erie, and had a brilliant war record. Admiral Stevens leaves three sons, one of them Lieutenant Stevens, of the navy, and a daughter.

Thomas Holdup Stevens was born in Middletown, Conn., May 27, 1819. He became a midshipman in 1836, was aid to President Tyler in 1842, lieutenant in 1849 and from 1852 to 1855 commanded the schooner Ewing on the Pacific coast. At the opening of the civil war he was ordered to command the Ottawa, one of the ninety-day gunboats being constructed, raised a crew of volunteers at Erie, Pa., and joined the South Atlantic blockading squadron of Admiral Dupont. While commanding a division of gunboats he drove the fleet of Commodore Tatnall under the protection of the forts at Port Royal in November, 1861. In January, he had an engagement with Tatnall's mosquito fleet in the Savannah river. He commanded the first expedition up St. John's river, but left the South Atlantic blockading squadron in May, 1862, to take command of the steamer Mataranza. He was at the battle of West Point and commanded the first expedition to Cumberland and White House, to open James river, taking part in the demonstration against Petersburg and the battle of Malvern Hill. On July 4 he captured the Confederate gunboat Teazer. He was promoted commander July 16, 1862, and ordered to the ironclad monitor, with which he covered the flank of the army on James river and its rear during the withdrawal from the peninsula. In September, while attached to Commodore Charles Wilkes's flying squadron, he captured five prizes and hased the privateer Florida on to the Bahama banks. In October he stopped the steamer Gladiator off Bermuda while she was under the convoy of the British ship of war Desperate, and both commanders cleared their decks for action. The Gladiator was taken by mistake for a blockade run-ner. Early in August, 1863, he commanded the ironclad Patapsco and performed gallant service with the forts in Charleston harbor. teries on Sullivan's island he led a boat attack against Fort Sumter. Afterward he comanded the Oneida, of the western gulf blockading squadron, but was temporarily appointed to collect the ballots. ransferred to the ironclad Winnebago Ioi the operations before Mobile, in July, 1864, in which he was conspicuous for the handling of his vessel and his personal daring. He commanded the Oneida off the coast of July 26, 1866; commodore, Nov. 20, 1872, and rear admiral Oct. 27, 1879. After commanding the Pacific fleet and acting as president of the board of visitors at the United States Naval Academy, he was retired May 27, 1881.

HIGHEST CANDIDATE IS SHORT OVER ONE HUNDRED VOTES.

On the Third Ballot McCabe Had 234, Cranston 203, Bowen 170, Hamilton 153, and Buttz 113.

CLEVELAND, O., May 15 .- Interest scarcely less intense than that of a national political convention centers around the election of two bishops in the Methodist General Conference. Three ballots were taken to-day, and one of these will not be announced till to-morrow morning. although the result is known in certain quarters. The highest vote on the third ballot is that of Chaplain McCabe, and this is more than one hundred short of enough to elect. The balloting may go on all day

Central Armory was filled with spectators when the conference convened this morning. Bishop Fitzgerald presided, and the devotional services were conducted by the Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of Mississippi, a colored minister. Promptly at 9 o'clock Dr. Swindell arose and moved that the order of the day-the election of bishops-be taken up. Bishop Foss offered a most fervent prayer for divine guidance and freedom from any unworthy motive. The floor was cleared of all except delegates, and a laugh was created by Bishop Fitzgerald replying to a request that the initials of all candidates be given, "I will do so if the time be extended." Fifteen tellers were

The first ballot resulted in no choice. The vote was as follows: J. W. E. Bowen (colored), 147; C. C. McCabe, 141; Earl Cranston, 115; J. W. Hamilton, 107; Dr. H. A. Buttz, 72; T. B. Neely, 47; C. W. Quayle, John Mitchell, Robert Forbes, F. F. Jewell, Robert Bentley, D. F. Pierce and G. B. Graw, one vote each. The result of the ballot was greated with applause, and the colored delegates were delighted over the lead of their candidate. As there was no election another ballot was taken, and the tellers retired to count the vote. The second ballot resulted in no choice. McCabe led and Bowen fell somewhat behind. Following is the vote on the first five names: C. C. McCabe, 218; J. W. E. Bowen, 175; Earl Cranston, 164; J. W. Hamilton, 145; or. Buttz, 96. Necessary to a choice, 343.

After taking a third ballot, but before i was announced, the conference adjourned. It was learned to-night that the third ballot stands: Chaplain McCabe, 234; Rev. Dr. Earl Cranston, 203; Rev. Dr. J. E. W. Bowen, 170; Rev. Dr. J. W. Hamilton, 153; Rev. Dr. H. A. Buttz, 113.

While the various ballots were being counted the regular business was taken up. A resolution by Dr. Ackerman against any delegate leaving before the end of the conference was tabled amid applause Dr. J. N. Fradenburgh, of Eric Conference, presented a resolution which recites the fact that as doubt existed regarding the constitu-ionality of the restrictions of popular amuse-ments the committee on judiciary should be requested to present a report on that point. The resolution was adopted. Dr. Swindell presened a resolution requesting Congress to pass a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in any building under the control of the general govern-ment. This was aimed at the emigrant building at Ellis island and at United States army posts, and it was adopted.

A recess of ten minutes was taken and after the recess the regular order of business was taken up and memorial services were held. Bishop Fitzgerald called Bishop Bowman to the chair, saying it was eminently fitting that the senior bishop should preside, and the graceful act was greeted with great applause. After the singing of a hymn Dr. Forbes, of Detroit, read a portion of the Scripture and Dr. W. B. Kelly offered praypers were masterly productions and held the closest attention of the audience. After the commencement of the second ballot for bishops the conference adjourned

There was a lively debate, bordering on the acrimonious, at the meeting of the committee on state of the church this afternoon, A report on sociological work, written by Rev. Dr. William A. Quayle, of St. Louis, was presented, to be the voice of the church on the subject. It was long and a wide departure from the usual formal report. It called forth some decided criticism and was defended by Dr. Quayle. After a long discussion it was returned to the subcommittee for revision. The committee took up the suggestion that the term of probation be shortened, but the committee decided in favor o retaining the present term of six months. A subcommittee was instructed to prepare a ritual form to be used in the admission of The committee on itineracy considered another measure calculated to lessen the authority of the bishops. It was that the consent of the cabinet of presiding elders be had before a bishop can transfer a minister from one conference to another. The com-mittee declined to recommend the change.

Cripple What We Promise In Our Ads We Perform In the Store

Continued and Unprecedented Success of the Wonderful

TRUSTEE SALE

It isn't advertising that does it; it isn't a magnificent store that does it; it isn't salesmanship that does it. There is but one thing that has made this Trustee Sale pre-eminently successful; but one thing that has induced so many customers to go out of their way to bring others to us. One thing that above all others is the sure road to success-
